Status of Dook Case Also Sought

Port Arthur is going to learn the status of its cases before Washington bureaus.

H. Y. Taylor, traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, leaves tonight for a three weeks' trip to Washington where he will represent the local chamber in six different important matters which come up for discussion within that time.

Before Shipping Board
Taylor primarily will be in Washington as a member of a committee of four from the Gulf coast states who for ten days, beginning Oct. 7, will stage what is promised will be an epochal fight before the United States Shipping board. The fight will be for equalization of shipping rates on the Gulf coast commensurate with those of the North and South Atlantic coast ports, which are from 15 to 1 1/2 cents lower than on the Gulf.

With Taylor making the fight on behalf of every coast city from Pensacola to Galveston will be R. G. Cozz of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, Carl Gess, of the New Orleans chamber, traffic department and H. H. Haynes, vice president of the Houston chamber.

Probe Dock Case Delay
This committee will have the support not only of all the coastal cities but of the Mississippi Valley Shippers' association, the Midwest Shippers' association and the Texas Industrial traffic league.

While in Washington Taylor says he will make an investigation as to the delay in the handling down of a preliminary report on the Port Arthur dock case which was held here in May 1923 before an examiner of (Turn to Page 2, Column 2)

Public Fails to Give Pennies, Nursery Babes Are Milkless

EST we forget—
Twenty-six little ones at the Day Nursery went almost milkless during September. Only $16-50 cents a day—was realized from public contributions of pennies and nickles to the milk bottle fund, upon which the babes, with other donations of milk, must depend for their milk supply. Some bottles were broken; some were stolen. None were well patronized.

This was the condition revealed today by Federated Missionary societies, voicing an appeal to the public to remember the little ones.

"Just a penny or two from everybody and the milk problem will be solved," Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, member of the board, said today. "If it were not for large individual donations our babes would actually go hungry. They need the food that only milk can give, but unless we get more pennies in the milk bottle fund they are in danger of going without."

OFFICIALS FIGURE BOND TAX ITEMS
Rates of 35 Issues Against City to Be Determined

TAXES DUE WEDNESDAY
Council May Pass Rate Ordinance at 5 P. M.

Pens scratched busily at the city hall today, with tomorrow scheduled to be the first day for tax payments, figuring out the necessary levies to take care of 35 bond issues now extant against the city. The commission will meet at five o'clock to pass an ordinance setting forth the necessary levies out of an approximate 50-cent figure out of a total estimated tax rate of $1.75 on the $100.

Lomax Estimates 80 Cents
While 50 cents was estimated by Tax Assessor G. K. Lomax as the necessary levy for interest and sinking fund, this may not work out in practice. City Clerk E. H. Miles and E. L. Hall, accountant, were busy today with their figures and conferring with city officials.

No one would admit that tax payments might be temporarily held up, although this is a bare possibility. "No, I don't think there will be any delay," said Mayor Logan.

"If the 50-cent levy should be more than necessary to take care of interest and sinking fund, would there be any harm in the $1.75 rate lapsing over perhaps half a cent?" the mayor was asked.

"No, I don't think so. We'll be able to tell more about it all after the meeting this afternoon."

The job before Miles and Hall today was the complicated one of figuring out to exact mills of a cent the amount out of the tax rate necessary to take care of each of the 35 bond issues now against the city.

The following letter was today sent to City Attorney Wistner by Lomax: "From the most careful check I am able to make without having actually audited the 1924 rolls I find the following totals:

"Valuation, $29,486,300.
"Total amount of tax to be raised for all purposes will be $323,684.14.
"General Fund, $225,088.48.
"Sinking Fund, $98,595.66.
"Bond Fund, $25,000.00.
$248,684.14.
"The Special Improvement District No. 1 roll shows a total valuation of $1,000,000. On a rate of .08, this will produce taxes to the amount of $1,000.00."
"Respectfully,
"G. K. LOMAX."

ISONZO'S PUMPS SLOWLY GAINING
More to Be Added to Combat Leak Intakes

Pumping out the sunken Italian battleship Isonzo was coming along better today as the vessel rose by inches out of the water, but still the end of the job to reopen the canal to traffic, blocked off two weeks ago today, is not in sight, according to word from U. S. government engineers in charge of the work.

Other pumps to be added to the battery of four centrifugals now throwing water out of the holds of the sunken vessel were to be connected up this afternoon by the engineers.

Leaks Delay Operations
Leakage, it is understood here, continued to delay the pumping out operations, but this was gradually being overcome as the vessel came up and divers continued to work, closing openings in the submerged hull.

Later today no orders had been given for ships up the Neches river and below Port Arthur, at Sabine Pass, and anchored off the bar, to start moving.

ARMY MURDER REACHES COURT

Mysterious Death of Officer Again to Be Aired
COMPANION ON TRIAL

Pothier's Confession, Repudiations Feature Case

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 30. Climaxing one of the most sensational scandals that the United States army ever uncovered, a federal district court here began the trial of Roland Pothier, ex-sergeant major, for the alleged murder of Major Alexander Cronkhite, while on a practice march at Camp Lewis, October 25, 1918.

First Verdict Accidental
October 22, almost six years to a day after the shooting of the young officer, Captain Robert Rosenbluth, who, with Pothier, was present at the time of the Cronkhite death, will go on trial, for the alleged murder.

A column of troops went on a practice march October 25, 1918. Stopping to rest, Pothier, Cronkhite and Rosenbluth stalked off into the woods. Several shots were fired. Pothier and Rosenbluth returned, saying Cronkhite had accidentally shot himself while practicing firing. The verdict of the examining body was sent to the war department.

Major General Adelbert Cronkhite, with the American army in France, returned and reopened the investigation into his son's death.

Repudiates Confession
On March 19, 1921, Pothier signed a confession that he was responsible for the death of Major Cronkhite. He said his pistol accidentally was discharged. Next day he charged Captain Rosenbluth with having ordered him to shoot Cronkhite.

He made several statements, this repudiated all of them, claiming he had given false confessions by the third degree.

A grand jury investigation was held in Tacoma in 1922 and the probe brought experts from all parts of the nation. Both men were indicted for murder by the jury. Both have gathered powerful staffs of attorneys and witnesses have been subpoenaed from widely scattered points in this and foreign countries. Federal Judge E. E. Cushman will conduct the trial of Pothier.

"Referring from its work at this time has more of a deleterious effect on the public health than such an attitude of undue precaution can possibly gain," they agreed.

CLERKS SEEK SALARY BOOST

P. O. Employees to Ask Support for National Bill

One-half the world may not know how the other half lives. But Port Arthur post office employees are determined that Port Arthur, at least, shall know how they live.

Members of Port Arthur local Federation of Post Office Clerks, today announced that a campaign shortly would be conducted by employees here acquainting organizations with provisions of a new bill having for its object increases in salary, according to length of service, for post office employees over the United States.

Under present schedules post office employees receive from $1400 to $1800 yearly. This they declare is insufficient to meet the cost of living, and is a meager recognition of the responsibilities they assume in their work. So the new bill asks for an increase to $1700 and $2100 in order they may keep the wolf from the door, get out of debt, and be relieved of the worries of a hand-to-mouth existence, according to an announcement by officials of the local today.

The post office employees will carry their problem before Port Arthur luncheon clubs, the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, Y. M. B. L., Retail Merchants' association and other civic bodies in an effort to secure endorsement of their increase. It is hoped, they said, to secure this in order that members of congress may be acquainted with the sentiment of the community, since the bill is doomed to failure unless the employees have the moral backing of their own communities.

HAS GREATEST FAITH IN POWERS OF TANLAC

Mrs. Holmes Finds Best Results Are Obtained By Giving It Thorough

Referring with regrets to the fact that she had been among those who had "stopped taking Tanlac too soon," Mrs. Louise Holmes, 244 West Cevallos St., San Antonio, Texas said: "For a long time I had suffered from nervous indigestion, couldn't sleep nights and often during the day I became so weak, dizzy and exhausted that I had to sit down and rest.

"The first bottle of Tanlac brought me such splendid results that I carelessly quit taking the medicine. For that reason I soon became run-down again, but when I realized my mistake I started right back on Tanlac and am now feeling fine. I have the greatest faith in Tanlac and, while my health is perfect, I mean to stick to Tanlac this time until I have taken at least six bottles to make sure the work is thoroughly done."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over

WILL IMPROVE FLYING FIELD

Aviator Owen Forming Nucleus for Future Air Route

Port Arthur's new flying field will be improved to meet every requirement of naval and army regulations pertaining to safety and convenience in landings. F. S. Owen, Port Arthur aviator, declared today.

"Port Arthur should have a good landing field," Owen said, "At present there is none convenient except here for a radius of more than 20 miles. I flew to Beaumont from Port Arthur in eight minutes Saturday. It required 10 minutes to make a landing, and the place I was forced to land on, the best in sight, made it a hazardous operation."

Should the government at any time designate Port Arthur as a station on any organized model airway or mail route, Owens will have already prepared the nucleus of a modern field, he declared, smoothed, marked and adapted to day or night landings.

Orders Liberty Motor

Owens has ordered a big Liberty motor, developed during the war but with later refinements, which will take the place of the motor installed a week ago in one of his planes.

"The present motor is safe and in perfect condition, but I want to provide for greater lifting power," Owen said. In making the change, Owen, an expert pilot and mechanic, will make certain changes necessary in the fuselage and controls to provide speed, greater fuel carrying capacity for sustained flights, since the addition of a higher powered, heavier motor makes it necessary to make changes to provide for changing of its center of gravity.

HIGGINBOTHAM

car. The testimony showed the automobile was found on Houston avenue the next day.

According to the story of the affair told by Higginbotham to Jailer Williams of the police department, he and the two Port Neches men engaged in conversation at the Houston avenue domino parlor Friday night. Higginbotham said the two men finally asked him to go and get them some whisky. Williams said and gave him $25 to buy it. Higginbotham told the jailer he took the $25 and went in the automobile belonging to the Port Neches men and bought some whisky. Williams said Higginbotham claimed that the reason he had not returned the car was he was followed by police officers, fled from them, broke the whisky and drove the car back to the business section where it ran out of gas on Houston avenue.

Attorneys Rose and Johnson, of Port Arthur, defending Higginbotham, indicated today habes corpus proceedings would be held in the 60th district court at Beaumont to secure Higginbotham's release until the grand jury meets.

GULF PORTS

The Interstate Commerce commission, Taylor states there should have been a report on this case long ago and he will seek to hurry it up. The case is an attempt of the city to compel the Kansas City Southern to allow other rail lines to have dock space here.

Taylor also will call on W. V. Keen, vice president of the Emergency Fleet corporation, and find out why Port Arthur is not being designated on maps and other literature put out by the corporation.

"Port Arthur, the biggest port in the Sabine district, is being overlooked and not even its name put on the government maps, while smaller ports of the district are shown graphically. We want to remedy this and get our due," Taylor commented.

Another matter Taylor will give his attention to in Washington will be to determine the status of the Clark, Great Lakes, Atlantic and Pacific steamship company which was to come to Port Arthur and establish a Gulf terminal. Taylor will call on S. W. Clark, president of the company, while there.

On his return Taylor will visit New Orleans, where he will represent the Port Arthur chamber before the annual meet of the Intra-Coastal Canal association.

V. of A. Granted Right To Campaign Here

Permission was granted by the city commission today to Captain and Mrs. Slade of the Volunteers of America to open a 15-day drive for funds tomorrow to place the organization on a lump-sum basis instead of depending upon the daily tambourine receipts.

Last month $72.50 alone was spent for lodgings, when a house more than large enough to render the same service could be rented for $60, Slade said. Work has been found for 195 men since the Volunteers of America have started operations here, Slade said.

"What we really ought to have is a community chest, but we can't get it into effect until next year," Mayor Logan said. The 15-day drive during October will mean the end of tambourine soliciting on the streets.

Officers Warn Negroes To Stop When Ordered

Negroes who are halted on the streets at night by police officers would do well to stop and not begin running. Detective Rose of the night squad of the police department warned this morning.

Rose said since the present scare over the burglary epidemic he and other night officers had been stopping all negroes seen on the streets late at night for questioning. A number of the negroes have valid excuses for being out and are allowed to return home and suspicious ones are locked up, the officer said.

"The point is, when an officer orders a negro to halt, that is no signal for the negro to break and run. The officer must run him down and some good negro who is just scared and not guilty of anything is going to get shot sometime by running. Negroes can make more by halting and being questioned than by running and it's much safer," Rose commented.

Experiments have proved that the brain of an ant is about the size of a darning needle's head.

CREMATION
Against the custom of cremating the human body after death the prejudice seems to be lessening.

A conference on the subject was held by distinguished men of science, religion and other walks of life, recently in England.

Bishop Gore spoke in favor of cremation and his remarks were interesting not only because of their intrinsic force, but because of his position as a prelate in the Anglican church.

According to him the only really logical contention against cremation was that it destroyed means of ascertaining whether a person had died by poisoning. From a sanitary and utilitarian point of view the advantage of cremation could not be denied.

The strongest position against it is that of sentiment. The Catholic church carefully excludes theological grounds from those upon which it is prohibited. The chief motive is a reverence for immemorial custom.

The Christian idea of the resurrection of the body does not in any way mean the preservation or reconstruction of the material particles of the present body, although this idea is implied in the phraseology of the Nicene Creed.

The movement in favor of cremation is a part of the movement of sanitation and science against sentiment. Sentiment always holds in connection with the dead and it is very difficult to resist, yet the problem of disposing of dead bodies in large states is constantly growing more acute.

Those in favor of cremation depend upon logic, while those opposed to it are governed by sentimental reasons. The conflict between logic and sentiment is universal and covers every phase of human progress. It takes time to accomplish any reform, especially when opposition to it is entrenched in the feelings.

As far as the resurrection of the body is concerned it would be an easy matter to gather the materials from the air, or from water, place them in a box, and there they would be. Besides this, the fact that the particles of matter from the dead body go, in time, to the construction of new bodies renders a literal adherence to a bodily resurrection very difficult.

Just what the resurrection body will be is not known. It will be some sort of clothing for the human soul, but the matter had probably been left to the Scriptures put it, which was that "There is a spiritual body and there is a natural body."

There can be no doubt, however, that cremation is the most sanitary and scientific method of disposing of human remains.

In New York
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Every evening I see a man who sells whisky. He isn't a bootlegger. Nor is he a bartender. But he wears a white vest and an enormous gold chain is attached to his waist.

He is a whisky salesman, who on government permit, sells liquor to restaurants who dispense it on doctors' prescriptions.

He is far removed from the type of wine salesman of pre-prohibition days. In those times the men who sold liquor to the trade went from bar to bar each night, buying "drinks for the house" and making friends for themselves and their product with the nightly revellers. It was a difficult task and many a man lost his health in the service.

This modern whisky salesman is an artist on the telephone. He gets most of his orders without ever calling in person on a customer. He is bluster of manner, has a red face, but, I am told, never has tasted the liquor he sells.

Somehow he makes a pathetic comparison with the polished wine salesman of yesteryear who went to high class bars and ordered champagne for all guests. He was a romantic figure.

Plasterers and bricklayers now have little or nothing on facial calomins. The Independent Beauty Parlor Workers' Union is New York's latest organization.

The girls who redecorate a face, are out for more money and shorter hours—and larger tips, if possible.

Joseph Kilbrey, 11, found a chain bag containing three diamond rings. They were returned to the owner and Joe received $200 reward.

He immediately bought shoes for his brothers and sisters. Complete outfits of clothing came next. If there is enough left he wants a bicycle.

Joe's daddy is a waiter. It still pays to be honest—even in New York.

MISSING LINKS FOR W. J. B.
William Jennings Bryan is making speeches for the democratic nominee in the mountain states of the west. A living tribe of missing links is reported to be inhabiting small islands in the vicinity of Sumatra and the Dutch government has ordered a scientific expedition to examine the missing links.

Newspapers in the Dutch East Indies say that mysterious creatures, half man and half ape, are frequently seen by natives of Poulou Riman Island and the natives call them orang padiks.

As evolution appears to be a dead issue in Texas and Florida with William Jennings Bryan fighting the republicans in the mountains and Rev. J. Frank Norris fighting the devil in Montreal, this discovery of a living tribe of missing links is certain to start more talk after the elections are over.

But why continue the slanderous campaign against the ape family?

ONLY ONE ISSUE
Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is a Californian. This is an excerpt from a speech that he was going to make until he was gagged by the president:

"The fact is that there is only one issue in American politics and that is the negro. The negro problem is what gives the democratic party its backbone in the solid south and it gives it some hope of success."

Wilbur should come to Texas. In Texas the negro has been thrown in the ditch by the white republicans and never come out of the ditch except on election day.

TEXAS COTTON MEN SHOULD BE ON EASY STREET SOON
Cotton gamblers in and out of Texas were given a thrill a week ago. There was more than unusual interest in the government crop and condition report. It indicated a 55.4 per cent condition and a yield of 12,596,000 bales. On September first the report issued placed the condition at 59.3 per cent and a yield of 12,787,000 bales.

Cotton jumped ten dollars a bale when the wires dropped the news the country over. There was a wild scramble in New York, a wild scramble in New Orleans, a wild scramble in all the market centers, great and small by traders to cover their short interests. Texas will produce a crop near the four million bale mark. It may go four million three hundred thousand bales. Those who have been bragging and betting on a bumper crop were given a jolt.

Business conditions are improving in every European land. Business conditions are improving in Oriental lands. Japan cotton buyers are on the ground. They know what they want and how to get it. They watch the market and they buy early. They are after the new crop. Russia is buying of the new cotton crop.

According to New York advices the Soviet Textile Syndicate is one of the largest direct purchasers of American cotton this year. The All Russian Textile Syndicate, Incorporated, is the American branch of the Russian organization, representing Russian textile manufacturing co-operatives. This concern has started shipping cotton of the new American crop and if the volume of purchases of old and new crop cotton made already this year is a good indication of future commitments, they will reach a hundred million dollars by next January.

According to the New York agent of the Soviet Textile Syndicate not all of this amount is expected to be delivered by next January but about fifty per cent of this estimated total has already been contracted for by the syndicate. A steamship is taking another six thousand bales. It is said two more ships with cargoes totaling 23,500 bales will sail from Houston for Russia in the near future.

In addition to this the Russian syndicate has purchased between a hundred thousand and a hundred and fifty thousand bales additional in Europe and Egypt. Actual Russian shipments from American ports have aggregated since February 8 about 190,000 bales of last year's crop. Moreover it is said the Russian Textile syndicate plans to extend its operations to include American dyes and possibly other products.

Has Russia come back? Well, a New York trade newspaper says the credit advanced to the Russian Syndicate by New York banks have enabled it to guarantee prompt payment for the goods purchased. All the war ridden countries of Europe are coming back. All need raw cotton and cotton goods.

Germany is growing stronger and stronger every day and Germany is a large buyer of American cotton. There should be a fancy price for cotton this year for the world's supply will not be equal to the world's demands unless the business signs of the times in Europe and the Orient as well as America, are misleading to the students of trade conditions and the practical economists of the world.

Grand old Texas should be on easy street this year.

Dancing
By Amy W. Eggleston
She danced divinely, I lost my head. And these were the wise, wise words I said:

"Ah, love, could we thus forever serenely through life glide, Always in step together, happily side by side,

"With my strong arm to guide you, your soft hand on my sleeve, Headless of jolts and jostles, smoothly our way we'll weave.

"Life would be all harmony, oh, sweetest partner mine, Life would be all melody, danced to air divine."

She dropped her head with a pretty pout:

"What would we do when our pumps wore out?"

What Darning Has Done
Black: "I got even with my talkative barber."

Smith: "Did you silence him?"

Black: "Very effectively. I sent my wife to him."

Judging from the sound, a good many patrons of restaurants believe in putting the din in dinner.

Protection Vanted
Florin: "Chief, an useless protection! Ah got a unanimous letter this mornin' which says: 'Nigger, let my chickens alone.'"

Chief of Police: "Why protection? Just leave the chickens alone."

Florin: "But this is a unanimous letter! How is I to know whose chickens to let alone?"

—Mrs. M. Gibson.

A Cure for Forgetfulness
Ted, aged four, was going to a party and his mother told him over and over that he must thank his hostess and be sure and tell her what a good time he had had.

When he arrived home she said: "Well, Teddy, did you thank your hostess and tell her that you had a lovely time?"

"Yes mother," replied Ted, "I told her just as soon as I got there so I wouldn't forget."

—Isabel M. L. Hummer.

Nowadays when a mother comes home and finds cigarette ashes on the piano she doesn't know whether her daughter had a young man or girl caller.

THE WISE BUSINESS MAN DOESN'T GO AS FAR AS HE MIGHT

Failures are not caused by hard times—they are merely shown up then.

There are no "ups" without a few "downs," and the man who plans his home or his business finances for all "ups" is due for a fall. Only his fall is not likely to come until he starts sliding down the slope.

"Business has been going so well for three years, now," remarks Mr. A. "that it seems silly to skimp on the building of our house. Let's put in a couple of thousand more and have all we want. We can manage."

He does manage—for a while. Then business tightens up, profits stop and the added thousands become the impossible burden that brings loss of the whole project. In successful times it is easy to slide into considerable debt. Profits seem sure, it's easy to borrow, and plenty of big success seems just ahead.

The wise man looks far enough ahead to see that while in good times he may indulge in reasonable expansion, he must never go as far as he thinks he might. He must keep a comfortable margin of safety.

If enough men kept this margin of safety, there would be no hard times. (Copyright, 1924, Associated Editors, Inc.)

FIRE TONGUE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Paul Harley, criminal investigator, is engaged by Sir Charles Abington to investigate the reason of the surveillance of Sir Charles by persons unknown to him. While Harley is dining at the Abington home Sir Charles falls from his chair in a dying state. Dr. McDermoch pronounces death due to heart-failure.

The last words uttered by Abington are "Nicol Brinn" and "Fire-Tongue." Harley insists that Sir Charles was poisoned and goes to ask Nicol Brinn the meaning of "Fire-Tongue." Brinn admits that he learned its meaning in India but refuses to divulge the secret.

Harley investigates the life of Ormuz Khan, Oriental friend of Phil Abington, daughter of Sir Charles. Polio ones, parlormaid, is questioned by Paul.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
It was in a box. He said I was not to open the box until I put the serviette on the table, and that it had to be put by Sir Charles' plate. It had to be put there just before the meal began.

"That night I couldn't see how it was to be done. Benson had laid the dinner table and Mrs. Howett was pottering about. Then, when I thought I had my chance, Sir Charles sat down in the dining room and began to read. I was still there and I had the box hidden in the hall stand, all ready, when—Sidney—rang up."

"Rang you up?"

"Yes. We had arranged it. He said he was my brother. I had to tell him I couldn't do it."

"Yes?"

"He said: 'You must. I told him Sir Charles was in the dining room, and he said: 'I'll get him away. Directly he goes, don't fail to do what I told you.'"

"And then?"

"Another phone call came—for Sir Charles. I knew who it was, because I had told Sidney about the case Sir Charles was attending in the square. When Sir Charles went out I changed the serviettes."

"And now—what was it that 'Sidney' stole from Sir Charles' bureau in the study?"

"It wasn't Sidney who took it. I took it."

"You took what?"

"A paper."

"You mean that you stole Sir Charles' keys and opened his bureau?"

"There was no stealing. He was out and they were lying on his dressing table. Sidney had told me to do it the first time I got a chance."

"What had he told you to do?"

"To search through Sir Charles' papers and see if there was anything with the word 'Fire-Tongue' in it."

"Ah!" exclaimed Harley, a note of suppressed triumph in his voice. "Go on."

"There was only one paper about it," continued the girl, now speaking rapidly, "for only one that I could find. I put the bureau straight again and took this paper to Sidney."

"But you must have read the paper?"

"Only a bit of it. When I came to the word 'Fire-Tongue,' I didn't read any more."

"What was it about—the part you did read?"

"I couldn't make it out, sir. Oh, indeed, I'm telling you the truth! It seemed to me that Fire-Tongue was some sort of mark."

"Mark?"

"Yes—a mark Sir Charles had seen in India, and then again in London—"

"In London? Where in London?"

"On someone's arm."

"What! Tell me the name of this person?"

"I can't remember, sir! Oh, truly I can't."

"It was not Ormuz Khan?"

"No! I remember, sir. It was Brinn!"

"Good God!" muttered Harley. "And you sure?"

"Quite sure."

"How often have you seen Sidney since your dismal day?"

"I saw him on the morning I left."

"And then not again until today?"

"No. He is a valet to a gentleman who lives in the country."

"What is the name of the place?"

"I don't know."

Paul Harley glanced at his watch, crossed the room, and opened the door. He turned. "You can go."

"But I don't think you will find Sidney waiting."

It waited only three minutes to midnight, and Innes, rather haggard and anxious-eyed, was pacing Paul Harley's private office when the phone bell rang. Eagerly he took up the receiver.

"Hello!" came a voice. "That you, Innes?"

"Mr. Harley!" cried Innes. "Thank God you are safe. I was 'grawking desperately anxious'."

"I am in by no means safe, Innes! I am in one of the tightest corners of my life! Listen: Get Wessex! If he's off duty, get Burton. Tell him to bring—"

The voice ceased.

"Hello!—Mr. Harley!" called Innes. "Mr. Harley!"

A faint cry answered him. He distinctly heard the sound of a fall. Then the other receiver was replaced on the hook.

"Merciful Heavens!" whispered Innes. "What has happened? Where was he speaking from? What can I do?"

CHAPTER XIII
Nicol Brinn Has a Visitor

It was close upon noon, but Nicol Brinn had not yet left his chambers. From that large window which overlooked Piccadilly he surveyed the prospect with dull, lackluster eyes.

There came a knock at the door.

"In," said Nicol Brinn.

Hoskins, his manservant, entered: "Detective Inspector Wessex would like to see you, sir."

Nicol Brinn did not turn around.

"In," he repeated.

Silently Hoskins retired, and, following a short interval, ushered into the room a typical detective officer, a Scotland Yard man of the best type. Nicol Brinn turned and bowed in the direction of a large armchair.

"Tray sit down, Inspector," he said.

Detective Inspector Wessex returned the bow, placed his bowler hat upon the carpet, and sat down in the armchair. Nicol Brinn seated himself upon a settee over which was draped a very fine piece of Persian tapestry.

Detective Inspector Wessex cleared his throat and did not appear to be quite at ease.

"Mr. Brinn," he said, "I am in an awkward corner. I know you for a man with a fine sporting reputation, and therefore I don't doubt your word. But Mr. Paul Harley disappeared last night."

At last Nicol Brinn was moved. He stood up, walked to a window, and stared out. "Just sit quiet a minute," came the toneless voice.

"You've hit me harder than you know. I want to think it out."

Then, as the detective continued to gaze upon the back of Mr. Nicol Brinn, suddenly the latter turned.

"Detective Inspector Wessex," he said, "there has been a cloud hanging over my head for seven years. That cloud is going to burst very soon, and it looks as if it were going to do damage."

Nicol Brinn sat down again upon the settee. "Detective Inspector," said he, "I give you my word of honor as a gentleman that I last saw Mr. Paul Harley at ten-fifteen on Wednesday night. Since then, not

Read How Mrs. Walsh Was Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mannington, W. Virginia.—"I took the Vegetable Compound when having the turn of life. I had been sick for seven years. I would get a little better, then I broke down again. It would be hard for me to describe how I was for I was a perfect wreck. I suffered with a pain in my left side, then I would have numb spells, and I would think I couldn't live. I would have hot flashes, the would come weak spells. I was so weak I could think I couldn't ever get a meal ready. My work was a burden to me. I was not able to do my housework half of the time. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has given me strength and health. The hot flashes left me and I got better of the numb spells. That summer I could do my housework and worked in the garden a good bit. I tell all sick women what your wonderful medicine did for me, and will always recommend it. I am known to all my neighbors, and you can publish this statement because it is true."

To the Public:

On and after Wednesday, October 1, there will be a slight increase in the price of Dixie Maid Bread and a few of our other bakery products.

This is due to the increase in price of wheat and the corresponding increase in the price of flour, and an increase in the price of the better grades of shortening and other ingredients.

The advance in the price of wheat began in the early part of June. We waited until now to let time determine whether the increase was due to politics, speculation or supply and demand.

Harvesting is now complete except in the extreme north. Estimates and crop reports have been published, and the market has held firm.

In some states bakers have been able to meet an increased flour cost by a decrease in the weight of the loaf. In Texas the weight is fixed by law.

The consumer may rest assured that Dixie Maid will be maintained at the highest quality, using, therefore, only the finest and best grades of flour and a liberal amount of milk, malt and shortening.

Running a wire from a ceiling fixture to a floor or table lamp is likely to do two things. It may give an untidy appearance to the room that should be the most attractive in the home. It is usually in the way, and likely to result in breaking the lamp. Convenience outlets will eliminate both of these troubles.

HOW TO BUILD
YOUR HOME
WALLS RIGHT

By the Architects Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

Outside walls of solid masonry are sometimes built with air spaces in them as in the tile wall. Or the solid brick wall may have these spaces included. There are various ways to do this so that cold and moisture will not penetrate. When these air-spaces do not exist in the wall itself, it is necessary for us to devise an air space between the plaster and the wall. We do this by putting strips against the masonry and nailing the lath to these. Plaster is then applied. Such a wall will be warm and dry. If it is built of good materials and good workmen are employed, it will last a long time and will not give you any trouble. Depreciation will be low.

Building a Masonry Wall

Think of brick and tile walls as a multitude of small blocks piled one upon the other. If the blocks overlap each other properly you have greater strength. Bonding is the name we give to this overlapping. It must go back into the wall as well as along the face of it. That is one of the first principles of masonry wall building. If the mason does not forget that the square and plumb are his important instruments you will have another principle well observed, and then if the blocks are cemented together with a mortar generously made and skillfully applied you will have durability and strength.

But one thing more. The block itself what about that? A well burned clay unit, to it tile or brick, is something like a mass of impure glass. It has temper as far from that of a poorly burned product as Damascus steel is from pot metal. The better the temper the stronger it will be.

We have come a long way in the building of walls since the cave man first learned to daub around reeds and the branches of trees. He built a temporary wall. When it rained it probably did not trouble him much to have a thin trickle of mud insinuating itself down his spinal column. Tight walls and roof did not mean much to him. Since that day we have learned how to build many kinds of walls—stone, brick, wood, tile, concrete—and we have learned that every one of them must be built with understanding to get the protection our dollars are intended to buy. It is easy to think of a stone wall as the strongest wall that can be built, but this is not necessarily true. Everything depends on the stone and the workmanship, just as it does with other materials used in wall building.

This is the last of three articles appearing in this column on "How to Build Walls."

HELP FOR THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BUILD

HOMES TO BE BUILT WITH LEAN PURSES

By the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

When it comes to lowering home building costs and omitting certain things which you do not absolutely have to have, it is worth while to consider the fireplace. You can omit it, if you need to keep down the expense of your home. No doubt, this suggestion may start trouble, for anybody who has the real sentiment of home about him thinks of a wood fire and sitting around it with his family—a fine place to sit in the cool evenings of fall and spring, a fine affair to supplement the heating plant when winter temperatures are way down low. When you have friends in, it is the cheeriest place in the house, but the expense of sitting around that fireplace can easily be over $300. The point we wish to make is that you do not positively have to have a fireplace at first. You can add it at any time. We have seen many homes in which families lived comfortably without a fireplace.

Few Features But Comfortable

In the home we spoke of in a preceding article built a number of years ago without a basement, and in which a family lived so comfortably, there was no fireplace. The house had no built-in features of any kind.

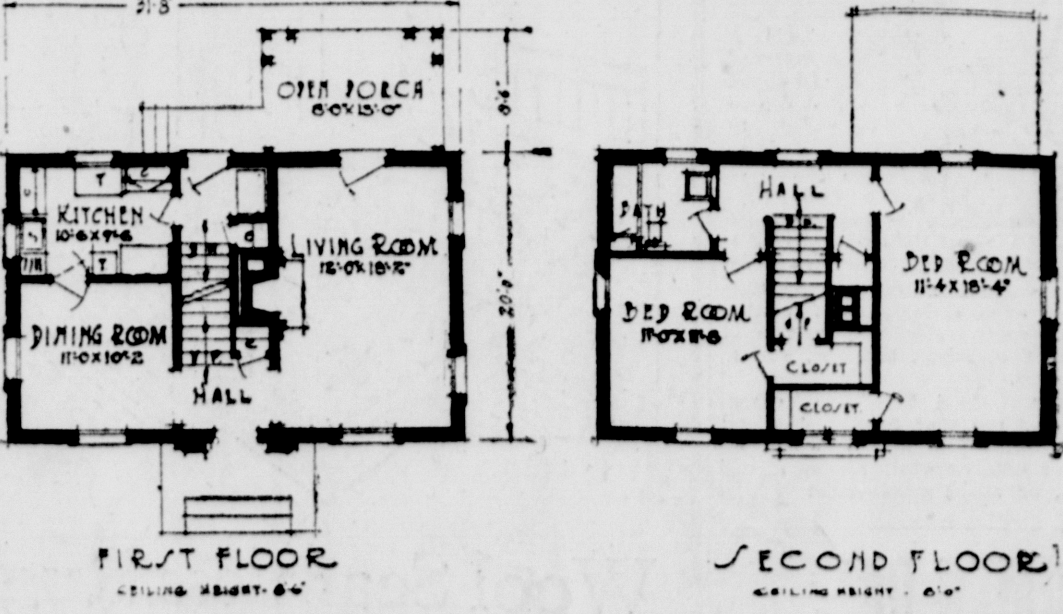

In the kitchen, for example, there was a kind of makeshift cupboard, but there were no drawers, bins or shelves. There was no kitchen cabinet of the modern sort, or a modern refrigerator with outside icing. Later on, however, when another house was built to replace the old one, all of these things were put in; and we learned, of course, what we had missed. But the point is, we got along without them for some years and were perfectly happy about it.

We have seen kitchens equipped with every known mechanical device and piece of furniture to lighten the burden and heart of the modern housewife. Kitchens that cost a thousand dollars or more to equip. Any normal man wants that kind of a thing for his wife, but it is plain that you can get along with a stove, refrigerator, some shelves, a sink, and a table, and these cost a whole lot less than $1,000. If you do not have money for kitchen cabinet work, china closets, book shelves, open stairways, you simply cannot spend it, and if you are doing without a home on account of the cost of these things and porches, and full basements, and extra plumbing fixtures, you are missing one of the joys of life.

Q—We are about to reshingle our house. Heretofore driving snow and sleet have drifted into the attic. Would it be a good plan to first put building paper on the roof before laying the shingles, or would that paper hold dampness and cause the shingles to rot?

A—Shingles last longer if no paper is used underneath them. However, in order to get a tight attic and avoid the sifting of snow and sleet, we advise laying waterproof paper or roofing felt over the roof boards. The roof boards should be laid tight. Use high grade shingles pressure dipped before laying, and the durability will be satisfactory.

Coaches Make Yellowjackets 'Hump' Themselves

SANDEFUR AND HANNA ADDED

Entire Squad Now in Good Condition

WORK, work and then work some more. Just a few more days of it, and there won't be very many cocky Yellowjacket football players thinking they amount to a great deal in the stellar system. That coaching gang out at the high school didn't do anything but start giving their charges a thorough, befitting "working over" yesterday afternoon.

Spot Hanna, star Texas Aggie guard of last season, and Penn Sandefur, a star of Southwestern University and of the old Port Arthur Pirates, were both on hand yesterday afternoon to assist Coach Lee Smith with his task of building the team. This makes a coaching staff of four, Assistant coach Ralph of the gymnasium staff being the other member. Hanna and Sandefur will continue with their coaching duties throughout the season.

Orange Here Saturday

The coaches started yesterday with a determination to take a few pegs out of the hunch and make a real football team out of the material. Some of the boys have developed something of a case of over-confidence just because they beat Dayton 103 to 0, forgetting that Dayton really had no team to speak of. There are games coming for the Yellowjackets that will make them hunch for all they are worth.

Orange is the next opponent, coming here Saturday. Orange was defeated by the strong South Park college team of Beaumont at Orange last week, 28 to 0. The collection are really out of the class of high school teams and Orange may flash some stone competition against Port Arthur this week.

Coaches will get a line on some of the Beaumont strength Saturday, when the county seat boys play Sour Lake at Sour Lake week after next. South Park High coming between for next week's game.

There wasn't any effort yesterday to pick out a first string team over a second string squad, for players were continually shifted. But there was work, and then more work. When the bunch was finally chased to the showers, it was practically dark. Much attention was given fundamentals in the opening of practice, and the last hour or hour and half was turned over to scrapping scrimmage. There wasn't any unbelief about it, even a three-year-old could tell from the way the coaches told the boys about it.

Boys Still Fumbling

The Yellowjackets were fumbling about as frequently yesterday as in the Dayton game, and showed a seeming reluctance to fall on the ball, stooping to pick up in a more or less regular manner. But it should not take a great deal more "working over" to make them play a hard-hitting driving game that simply won't and can't be halted. That's what the Yellowjackets will need if they ever expect to get anywhere.

One consolation is that the entire squad is in good shape. "Nubb" Elliott, kept out of scrimmage yesterday, on account of a lame foot, but he will be in shape by this afternoon. Wilmer Butaud had a hand slightly injured yesterday, but he will be in shape for hard play today.

Scen In The Squared Ring

NEW ORLEANS—Kid Carlin defeated Frankie Ash, English fly weight champion in 15 rounds. Ash proved a very clever fighter and Carlin had a hard time breaking through his guard but the Louisiana boy battered Ash badly about the face and kept up a tattoo on his ribs that won him most of the rounds.

DETROIT—The proposed bout here Thursday night between Pepper Martin, New York featherweight and Phil McGraw was cancelled when Martin wired he was too ill to fight. It was the fourth fighter to back out of the match, Kid Sullivan, Jr., lightweight, starting the list.

ERIE, Pa.—Tommy Freeman of Illinois, won the decision in a ten-round go with Jack Oaks, of Buffalo. Stanley Wills of Philadelphia, and Johnny Ward, McKeesport, went to a draw in eight rounds.

Senators Will Grab Series From Giants

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Even money generally prevails on the world's series today, with one or two bets reported in which the Washington Senators were slight favorites. In one instance $18,000 to $15,000 was offered and quickly covered that Harris' team would win.

Betting commissioners believe Walter Johnson will pitch the first game for the Senators and Washington will be a 3 to 2 favorite to take the first test.

McGraw May Have Master Mind; But He'll Certainly Have to Show It

60,000 Seek Series Tickets in Washington, With Seats For Only 36,000

GIANTS MAY BE WITHOUT GROH

Senators Boast Greatest Double Play Cogs

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—John McGraw's baseball teams, because of his reputation and record are always apt to be over-estimated. McGraw is the most successful manager in baseball but a lot of master mind stuff about him and his team was exploded in the world's series last fall.

Against the Washington Senators in the first game of the world's series next Saturday, an ordinary team of New York Giants will play for a manager who has been very successful in a long drive and who hasn't been so successful in a short series.

Senators' Outfield Best

The Giants have a pennant to show that they were the best club in the National League, but there may be some arguments about that. The Giants haven't the best club in the league. They won the pennant with the fightiest club.

The Senators, on the other hand, had the best and most spirited team in the American league and they will go into the world series with a chance that should be nothing more than even money.

The Senators have a better outfield than the Giants and their infield, while it lacks the brilliance of a Frisch, is more effective than the inner defense of the Giants. Washington has the best catcher in baseball and a pitching staff that is just as good if not better than the Giants.

Figuring that the teams are evenly matched, it will get down to the old stuff about the master mind on the bench. McGraw is a more experienced manager than young Buck Harris and he may know more tricks. But McGraw has not the inspired team working for him that Harris has shown in his head off for him. Remembering the performance of the inspired Boston Braves in 1914 against one of the greatest teams of all times and recalling Princeton's football war cry—"a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten," it would seem that McGraw will need all his master mind.

Giants Slow on Bases

The Giants, from the latest reports, may have to play without Heinie Groh and will have to use the 18-year-old rookie, Freddie Lindstrom, on third base, but Frisch will be able to resume his position at second plate.

Lindstrom is a brilliant youngster, but he will not be able to knock them down on the hot corner in Groh fashion. Frisch also may not be able to get away at second as fast with a sore finger.

The Senators have the greatest double play combination around second and base in the major leagues. As a whole the Giants are rather slow on the bases and a lot of Giant chances are going to be snuffed out with double killings.

The Senators may not have the vaunted punch of the Giants, but they hit well enough in the pinches and they have more speed to get more out of their hits than the Giants.

PIGSKIN PRIMER

What is the meaning of the expression punt formation?

In such a formation the ends usually are from four to 15 yards from the tackle, while the other five line men are close together. One man in the backfield is from eight to 12 yards back and the other three are grouped to protect him.

This formation also enables a team to run, forward pass or buck. Some teams punt from open formations. It is also possible to execute a quick kick from close formation although it is seldom done. It is a formation that offers many possibilities, therefore has a tendency to keep the opposition confused.

CLASSIC PLAYS OF THE GRIDIRON

How Penn Came From Behind to Score Four Touchdowns and Lick Michigan

BY ANDREW (ANDY) L. SMITH
Football Coach, University of California, and Former Star Back, University of Pennsylvania

Michigan came to Philadelphia in 1912 with a formation the Pennsylvania scouts had never seen. Before it was helpless. With it Michigan put us to rout. Throughout the first half the Wolverines smashed for repeated gains and, when the intermission brought a halt, the score stood 21 to 0.

Under the circumstances a thoroughly cowed Penn team might have been expected to reappear on the field for the second half. But it was anything but that. Between halves the Penn coaches outlined a defense for the Michigan formation. And, hope revived, the men of Penn returned to the battle keyed to a fighting frenzy.

We scored once. We scored twice. And with only two minutes left to play, the Red and Blue scored its third touchdown. But Chester Minds, who had kicked every goal from touchdown all season, missed this one and the hopes of Pennsylvania's supporters waned. Penn's comeback, great as it was, had fallen one point short, they were saying.

Michigan elected to receive the kickoff and immediately began to stall for time. A penalty for delaying the game forced them to punt. Dick Marshall, Penn's safety man, received the kick and, while an electrified throng wondered whether it was dreaming and a desperate interference moved down Michigan men right and left, Marshall ran for the winning touchdown.

From both sides of the field the stands poured their crowds. They crashed in mid-field. For an hour the mob milled madly, but finally the field was cleared and the remaining 45 seconds were played, the game ending Michigan 21, Pennsylvania 27.

Twenty-one points behind and the game half gone. Yet Penn pulled through. That's the power of grim determination—the will to win. You are only licked if you think you are.

JACK HOXIE STARS

This Hoxie feature proves conclusively that a story of the West, if humorous and genuine human interest is mixed with the thrills, will always be capital entertainment. The story, directed in filming by "Bill" Hart's director, Clifford S. Smith, runs smoothly through a series of adventures that aren't smooth in themselves, with novelty in thrills as one of the chief features. How the proverbial gun fight is avoided with one such novelty is one of the most entertaining points in the plot.

The heroine isn't a hard-riding, two-gun girl—she's a city "flapper," daughter of a former rancher. And she doesn't enter into the life of the ranch by being kidnapped or some other thrilling accident. She deliberately starts out to "vamp" the man she wants, and in so doing runs into all sorts of thrilling and humorous experiences.

Hoxie is supported by a capable cast, including Herbert Fortier, Lou Meelan, Pat Harmon, Pierre Gondron, Charles E. Thurston, and Olive Hasbrouck, a new "discovery" girl.

AT THE CAMEO

The Al Christie feature, "Hold Your Breath," will be shown at the Cameo theatre for the last time tonight. This rapid-fire comedy drama of a girl reporter is interpreted by one of the greatest comedy casts ever assembled.

It includes Dorothy Devore, Walter Heirs, Tully Marshall, Jimmie Harrison, Lincoln Plumer, Rosa Gore, Jay Belasco, George Pierce, Victor Rodman, Budd Fine, Eddie Baker and Douglas Carter. Frank Roland Conklin wrote the story and Scott Sidney directed.

"THE GIRL IN THE LIMOUSINE"
Larry Simon says that making people laugh is one of the most interesting and absorbing professions in all the world. In all of Larry's nine years of acting before the motion picture camera he has never once kissed a movie actress on the screen. It's all because Larry is a comedian.

WEATHER MAN FORECASTS RAIN

Harris Selects Johnson for Opener

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Transformed from the staid and dignified capital of a great nation into a widely excited Main Street town, Washington witnessed in a college campus frenzy today over the success of the Washington Senators in winning the American league pennant.

Rain which has drenched the city for 36 hours was still holding out but it failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the town or to restrain the demonstrations of pride in the success of Washington's first pennant winner.

Weather Man Sees Rain

The weather bureau warned that the downpour might continue through the week and that a tropical storm might arrive from the Gulf region on Saturday but the city went ahead with plans to give the team a royal welcome when it returns Wednesday night and to see the first two games of the series.

Sixty thousand applications for tickets have been made to the club office and almost half of them will have to be rejected because the park will hold only 36,000 without crowding.

Hoping to reward the boys who so loyally supported the team all season, the club officials are honoring applications first from Washington, then from Maryland and Virginia and then other out of town points.

Seats are sold in sets of three for the first two games and the sixth if necessary. If the series is decided in five games the money for the third ticket will be refunded.

Box seats are selling for $19.50 a set; grandstand seats, $16.50; bleachers, $9.00. A limited number of bleacher seats will be sold at the park before game time for $1.10 each.

Confide Leads Committee

Plans of the reception of the team have been completed. President Coolidge will act with the reception committee and will extend his congratulations and a welcome back to the city.

Buck Harris, the 28-year-old manager of the team, announces that Walter Johnson, grand old veteran who has been here for 17 years, will pitch the open game.

The Giants are due here Thursday night and they will be permitted to work out Friday at the park.

Jack Dempsey Plans New Vaudeville Tour

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Jack Dempsey's sudden decision to go back into hard training is the forerunner of another tour of vaudeville, it was reported here today. While the champion has not indicated that he will reject Tex Rickard's plan to match him with Jack Renault or Tom Gibson for an indoor match in Madison Square Garden, it is said that he is not satisfied that he can get enough money for an indoor bout and wants some easy money from the stage.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 30.—Arrangements for two football games between the Navy and the University of Michigan have been completed. The Navy will play at Ann Arbor in 1925 and Michigan will play at Annapolis in 1926.

GAMES DON'T NEED PRINCE

World Series Only Thing Left That Can Get By Without Royalty or Bathing Girls

By JOE WILLIAMS

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Well, the boys are all set, as the saying goes, to go out and commit another world series in broad daylight.

A world series is about the only thing, next to a family baptism, that can get by in this country without the help of a prince or a bathing girl.

It has got to be a habit, like wearing pants on the boulevard, and the great American loner simply cries for his annual punishment.

Just as soon as it appears certain that one of the teams in each league is going to survive the terrific ordeal of living in high-class hotels and feeding on three-inch steaks, Mr. Mountain Lands sits down and wires all the magnates, except the two innocent bystanders in Philadelphia, to meet him at a neutral point to discuss important matters.

A neutral point is any place where the authorities are lenient and the music is good.

Surprise 'Em

Presently the gentlemen—it has been established that it is possible to be a club owner and a gentleman at the same time—come staggering in with anxious eyes and bewildered expressions.

"Well, I gotta nice little surprise for you fellows here," opens Mr. Lands, running his long judicial fingers through nine yards of hair foliage.

This sets the magnates to speculating right away.

"I'll bid $3.40 for Siberian turnips for spring delivery," shrills Mr. Griffith.

Turnips are a passion with Mr. Griffith and doubtless explains why he has kept Nick Altrock around so long.

Meanwhile Mr. Pike's Peak Landis continues to smile mysteriously. "You'll never guess!" he challenges.

coily. Guessing is one of the best things a baseball magnate does.

"You aren't going to quit?" asks Mr. Ruppert hopefully.

The Yankee magnate is one of those rare souls who never becomes discouraged. Even his brewery is still paying dividends.

Intense Excitement

Mr. Blue Ridge Landis then slashes through left guard for seven yards and proceeds to let the zebra out of the bag.

"I'm going to have you boys get together and play a world series, just for the novelty of the thing."

Well, sir, you could have knocked the magnates over with a steel girder. Mr. Ebbets proposed nine rubs and a tiger for the man who dignified baseball on a cash basis of $42,500 per annum.

The conservative Mr. Dreyfuss suggested that six rubs and a plain house cut might do just as well.

Mr. Stenham refused to stir from his position, as you couldn't blame him. The Giants' owner had the bank-roll riding, on the next turn and everybody knows what a tough point 10 is.

Few people appreciate all the heavy details that must be handled in connection with a world series and this ought to help you forget 'em.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Back came Nancy and Nick to the Sour Old Woman's house under the water-fall.

They had the sleepy sand with them and all they had to do was to get the Sand Man out of the Sour Old Woman's cellar and start him off to his home in Shut-Eye Town.

Nancy peeped in through the Sour Old Woman's cellar window and there lay the Sand Man still fast asleep.

"St! St!" called Nick softly.

But it didn't do a bit of good for the poor fellow was tired out.

So Nick took some little pebbles and threw in, and at that the Sand Woman's front door and knocked. And just in time.

Because the Sand Man didn't know what to say when the Sour Old Woman asked him for the third time where the Twins were.

"We had an errand to do so we left," said Nancy. "You see it was time for all the babies to have their naps and someone just had to take the sleepy sand around. The poor Sand Man was all worn out with his hay fever."

The Sour Old Woman made a wry face. "Sleepy sand indeed!" said she. "We'll soon fix that. Eena Meena, say your charm."

So Eena Meena said:

"Slumber now you cannot make, Instead you'll keep folks wide-awake."

And he waved his hand right over the bag of sleepy sand.

"My goodness! You can't do that," gasped the poor Sand Man. "What will the babies do?"

"They will have to do without," said Eena Meena. "All three of you may go now."

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

JOHN CALVIN AND DR. SERVETUS

Part I—A Protestant Flees From Paris

Today we shall begin the story of John Calvin and Dr. Servetus. It is a rather sad story, and I am not altogether happy in telling it; but it will help to give us an idea of the time of the early protestant church.

In telling about this period in his life, Calvin later said:

"I kept feeling more and more that I was living in a state of sin. I tried to get rid of this feeling by going to confession and by doing penances. It was no use. I was filled with dread."

The result was that he became a heretic. That means he quit believing some of the things taught by the Catholic church. Going to Paris, he began to preach what he believed. One day, he heard that he was in danger of arrest. He jumped out of the window of his room and fled beyond the city limits.

Putting on the clothes of a farm-hand as a disguise, he sat out for the town of Noyon, where he expected to find protection.

HIGHT IS RETURNED TO JEFFERSON JAIL

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Sept. 30.—Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, of Ind., confessed poisoner of his wife for love of another, was back in Jefferson county jail today.

Shackled, he was brought back from Nashville jail late Sunday by Sheriff Grant Holcomb.

Mrs. Elsie Swetten, Hight's sweetheart, who confessed poisoning her husband at Hight's instigation, is still at the Salem jail.

Hight was removed to Nashville because mob violence was feared.

LEADS IN LUMBER

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 30.—Washington leads America in the lumber industry, investigation has revealed. There are more than 300 big logging camps and 800 sawmills employing approximately 120,000 workers in this state. The sawmills in Washington annually cut more than 6,000,000 board feet of timber.

PITY FOR GRAND CHILDREN—DEBATE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 30.—Yale and Cambridge will meet here October 13 to debate "rescued, that we pity our grand children."

SUSPENDED PENALTY FOR FIVE OFFENSES

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 30.—Although Nathan Silverman pleaded guilty to charges of forgery, perjury, false impersonation, conspiracy and aiding an escape, Judge Egan suspended sentence.

German Tanker Massasoit Leaves With Oil

Two vessels to load out for foreign ports, the Dutch steamship Tenbergen for South Africa, and the other, the American steamship Steel Exporter, for Shanghai, China, arrived in Port Arthur today, the Steel Exporter docking at the Texas Company terminals, and the Tenbergen going to the Mexican docks to await a berth at the Texas Company docks. With a part cargo loaded out at the Texas Company terminals in Port Arthur Monday, the German tanker Massasoit, formerly a British vessel, sailed today for Germany. The Massasoit was scheduled to go to the Pure Oil company's terminals at Smiths Bluff, but because of the canal blockade above the locks where the Italian motorship Isonzo sank, the tanker was diverted to Baytown and finished off at the Texas Company here.

Also sailing today for a foreign destination was the British tanker Delphinula, loaded out at the Gulf Refining company terminals, which goes to Bilbao, Spain. The Gulf company expected to sail its tanker Trinidad about noon for Boston, and the tanker Gulfland arrived in Port Arthur early today from Beverly Massachusetts.

TEXAN FLOATS MEXICAN LOAN

$50,000,000 Gold Bonds Put On Sale Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—An obscure Texas banker—obscure at least, as far as Wall Street is concerned—today undertook to float a $50,000,000 loan for Mexico.

After practically all the big foreign financing firms in the street had given up the task, J. L. Arlitt, Austin, Texas, announced the bonds will go on sale today.

They are 6 percent gold dollar bonds to yield about 9 percent. Arlitt is understood to be in Austin. The New York end of the deal is being handled by his branch office here. The loan will be guaranteed by oil revenue of the Mexican government.

Ft. Worth Convention Urged to Consider Port Arthur

Effort to secure for Port Arthur the 1925 convention of the Sons of Confederate Veterans with probability of 500 delegates, is being made today by the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, C. K. DeBusk assistant secretary announced this morning.

Today a special invitation was wired to the organization, now in annual convention at Fort Worth, urging them to consider Port Arthur when they come to hold for the 1925 convention Wednesday afternoon.

Port Arthur's official invitation will be presented by Elgin H. Blacklock of this city, who is state adjutant and chief of staff and is mentioned for state commander next year. Whether Port Arthur gets the 1925 convention or not it is believed the invitation will lay a good predicate for securing the 1926 meet.

Lack of hotel accommodations has been one reason, chamber officials say, no greater efforts have been made in the past to secure conventions for Port Arthur, but it is believed the hotel problem will be relieved by next year and efforts are being made for Port Arthur to get its share of conventions, chamber officials said.

Being a Prince of Wales is a fairly good job, but you don't get much time off for doing other things.
